LIBERAL ARTS @ STOCKHOLM SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS

SYLLABUS SWEDISH CRIME FICTION

Fall 2023

Instructor: Erik Cardelus

The purpose of the course is to provide students with basic knowledge of the tradition of Swedish crime fiction and to stimulate interest and critical reflection in this subject. The genre has been commercially successful worldwide in the 2000s, and this course offers an overview of this success story. A selection of acclaimed Swedish crime novels provides the main material of the course, but the students will also get acquainted with selected film adaptations as well as an ongoing discussion of the crime genre in the marketplace.

The course takes its starting point in the influential author duo Maj Sjöwall & Per Wahlöö, creators of emblematic character Martin Beck. We will take this work as the catalyst for the success of Swedish crime fiction and the inspiration for the use many Swedish authors make of crime fiction as a genre to highlight societal problems and political issues. While we will discuss the genre Swedish crime fiction from several points of view, our primary point of departure will be the relationship of literature to society (e.g. issues concerning class, gender, ethnicity, and power and the (re)presentation of Sweden as a society and Swedes as a nation in these texts).

Literature

We will use Kerstin Bergman Swedish Crime Fiction: The Making of Nordic Noir, 2014, as our main course book. It will provide the necessary basic background knowledge on most of the literature we read on the course. Moreover, you are advised to read a number of research articles about the literary works at hand. These are meant to give an enriched insight into Swedish society, the conventions of the Swedish crime fiction genre and also present a set of different approaches of analyzing it. You will also be supplied with Dictionary of Literary Terms and Literary Theory, by J. A. Cuddon (5 ed. rev. by M.A.R. Habib), Penguin, 2014. This compact volume is not meant to be read cover to cover, but to be used as a handbook – a tool for actualizing different terms of literary analysis that can qualify our seminar discussions (which entries are to be read in this will be told during the course).

Class requirements

This is a discussion-based course. Therefore, your regular attendance is required, and your active participation is expected. Please bring primary and secondary readings to class.

All classes take place 13.15 – 16.00 on Mondays at the Stockholm School of Economics. However, the classrooms will differ, so please check the exact classroom before each class.

An unexcused absence may negatively affect your final grade. Your grade will not be affected if you miss a class due to illness or in the case of a (documented) emergency situation. If you have a personal or family event that conflicts with a class, and cannot be re-scheduled, you may ask your instructor for an excused absence. Such a request should be made at least one week prior to the class in question. Please complete all readings by the date noted in the syllabus, and come to class prepared to engage fully with the materials. You are more than welcome to bring in additional materials of interest to the class.

Grades are based upon the following criteria:

- active participation in class and preparatory reading-journal entries (quality and timely submission)
- a midterm essay due 23/10 (formal assignment specified on 25/9)
- a final exam, december 4, 13-16.
